Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from From the Ground Up Among other things, one of the problems a pilot should tackle is learning to fly. Countless deluded young men, yearning for a career in aviation, have the sadly mistaken idea that that is all there is to it. A few hundred hours of patient application, the acquired ability to handle a ship with skill and ease - and presto! wings and gold braid. and the Airlines only too grateful for the privilege of granting one a commission! To those misguided young men I say, Son, go back to the farm before Dad changes his mind. There is no easy way. Ability to fly is a step in the right direction - but the most elementary one in our whole curriculum. In a few years Junior will learn to fly before he graduates from high school. Countless millions will line up once every year all over the world to renew their pilot s certificates - much the same as motorists do to-day. There is no pay-off on arts or crafts which are the common accomplishment of the masses. A transport pilot is, and always will be, however, a highly sought, highly paid individual specialist - because he is a master craftsman in his trade. Well, you ask, what has he got that I haven t got? That s exactly what I propose to tell you in these pages. Weather sense, for one thing, a knowledge line squalls and thunderstorms and icing conditions stable and unstable air masses - of cold fronts, and dewpoint, and all the odds and ends that go to make up the science of meteorology. He is an expert...
