Listen, little children, all, Listen to our earnest call: You are very young, tis true, But theres much that you can do. Even you can plead with men That they buy not slaves again, And that those they have may be Quickly set at liberty. They may hearken what you say, Though from us they turn away. Sometimes, when from school you walk, You can with your playmates talk, Tell them of the slave childs fate, Motherless and desolate. And you can refuse to take Candy, sweetmeat, pie or cake, Saying nunless tis free The slave shall not work for me. Thus, dear little children, each May some useful lesson teach; Thus each one may help to free This fair land from slavery. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
