Excerpt: . to become teachers, and special students who may be qualified to be classed with them, will be allowed to pursue normal studies. Of the graduates of the aeademical department during the last ten or twelve years a majority have for a longer or a shorter time been engaged in teaching. Since nearly all of these become teachers of teachers, and thus models for primary instructors, it is of the highest importance that they have a thorough preparation for the duties of the schoolroom. It will be seen that the normal and acadenlical departments have in the main coalesced. The reasons are obvious. Didactics, in the higher sense, is a liberal study. It includes the philosophy of mind, the laws of mental development, and all those branches of study and methods of instruction that are employed in general President l hacher s Report to...
