HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Manufacturing Research and Development: How Can the Federal Government Help thursday, june 5, 2003 10: 00 a. m. -12: 00 p. m. 2318 rayburn house office building Purpose On Thursday, June 5, 2003, at 10: 00 am the House Science Committees Subcommittee on Environment, Technology, and Standards will hold a hearing to review the most serious problems facing U. S. manufacturing with a particular focus on federal research, development, and technical assistance programs. Manufacturers are raising concerns that the United States is losing its competitive advantage in manufacturing technology, and that this will contribute to permanent job losses to overseas competition. The manufacturing community, industry analysts, and economists believe that significant, extensive changes are afoot in the manufacturing sector beyond the effects of the recent recession. Although U. S. firms, particularly the small and medium-sized manufacturers, cannot compete with the wage differential in many foreign countries, they can compete through factors influenced by the application of technology, knowledge, and skills. There are federal programs designed to help firms develop these capacities. Although effective, the funding levels of these programs have been controversial. The Subcommittee plans to explore several overarching questions, including: 1) What are the most serious long-run problems facing U. S. manufacturing To what extent . . .
